

NEWS LETTER

AUGUST 2025

EDULETICS INTERNATIONAL A BRITISH SCHOOL

EDULETICS INTERNATIONAL A BRITISH SCHOOL

Message from the Principal

Dear Readers

As we stand at the cusp of August's quiet retreat and September's poised arrival, we are enveloped in a profound sense of accomplishment having traversed half of the academic year with the successful culmination of the Mid-Term Examinations. Time in its silent velocity offers no intermission—sweeping us forward before we can fully hold onto the moments it carries away. Yet as we move with its rhythm, we find purpose, renewal and the steady opening of each new chapter. With a refreshed spirit we welcome you once again into our shared journey as we reflect on the meaningful progress and quiet achievements of the month gone by. In the same breath we extend our sincerest hope that every individual connected to our institution remains in lasting health and strength—ready to witness and contribute to the unfolding potential our young learners are prepared to bring to the world.

Preparations for the 15th of August commenced nearly a month in advance, gradually intensifying in the early days of the current month. Our students demonstrated remarkable dexterity in harmonizing academic pursuits with co-curricular commitments, exemplifying a balanced and disciplined ethos. The elegance and depth they infused into their performances were truly commendable. Their confident presence on stage served as a touching reflection of the year's guiding theme— Absolute Confidence—not as an abstract ideal but as a lived reality evident in their every gesture and endeavor. We are proud to share these moments with you dear parents as a reflection of the values our children continue to carry forward with grace and conviction.

We embrace the responsibility of honoring every occasion within our school community with genuine sincerity and respect. One such cherished festivity was Janmashtami, where the young, angelic souls of Grades K1 and K2 graced the event, adorned in exquisite attire representing Radha and Krishna, becoming the undeniable enchantment of the day. To the parents of these little luminaries, we extend our deepest appreciation for their invaluable support and dedication in helping orchestrate this event with such elegance and sincere spirit.

As the Mid-Term examinations approached, the air of lightheartedness gracefully gave way to a devout sense of earnestness underscoring the significance that these assessments hold for both learners and educators alike. In an instant, the atmosphere settled into a serene focus—students quietly absorbed in their preparations across diverse subjects, while teachers offered their final thoughtful guidance. We remain hopeful that their diligent efforts will yield rewarding results and we eagerly anticipate reconvening to reflect upon their achievements and insights following the conclusion of the exams.

As we bring this edition to a graceful close, it's always a challenge to pause when speaking of our young learners—each one a beacon of promise, ready to embrace a world brimming with opportunity. Looking ahead, we hope to reconnect with you next month perhaps during the Parent-Teacher Meeting. Until then, we wish you good health and renewed joy as we step into a month that heralds the onset of the radiant festive season.

Happy reading, and see you soon!

Team EBS

HEALTH CHECKUP

Life becomes truly beautiful when it offers us reasons to live with joy—and among the greatest of those reasons is the treasure of good health. While parents—the eternal custodians of their children's well-being—remain ever vigilant in safeguarding their physical fitness, schools too rise to the occasion and embrace the noble responsibility of nurturing health alongside education.

In keeping with this vision, our school had the privilege of hosting a routine health check-up camp in collaboration with Mediversal Hospital, Patna. This thoughtful initiative placed the spotlight on students' wellness and reaffirmed that a sound body is just as important as a sound mind.

The atmosphere was one of gentle anticipation and wonder. It was heartening to witness the genuine curiosity etched across young faces as students took their turn in the examination chair. With innocent eyes wide open and mouths willingly parted, they welcomed the check-up with a mix of excitement and intrigue. Each child seemed to listen attentively, almost eager to discover whether everything was perfectly fine or if some small concern needed attention.

There was something deeply touching in those moments—a silent yet powerful awareness dawning in these young minds that health too is something to be understood, valued and cared for.

This experience was more than a mere medical formality; it was a subtle lesson in self-awareness and a quiet celebration of well-being. The entire event left an indelible impression that will remain inscribed in the memory of every beholder as a beautiful reminder that true education is not only about nurturing the intellect but also about preserving the gift of health.

A Gentle Step Toward Wellness

Health is not just a necessity.
It's a celebration of life itself.

Good health
is the foundation
upon which
great dreams
are built.

EDULETICS INT.
A BRITISH SCHOOL

79th

INDEPENDENCE

Day

We have indeed journeyed far in celebrating the spirit of freedom. Though the ways of marking Independence Day have evolved, the unshakeable love and devotion to our country remain timeless.

This year on the 79th Independence Day we upheld tradition with the flag hoisting and a proud march past. Yet what truly set this celebration apart was a captivating swimming display—our students skillfully navigating the waters, carrying the Tiranga with pride as they showcased their aquatic prowess.

The cultural program resonated deeply, portraying the pain inflicted on peace-loving souls through a powerful enactment of the Pahalgam tragedy. From stirring speeches and soul-stirring group songs to a graceful patriotic ramp walk, every moment rekindled a passionate love for the nation.

In these moments of reflection and celebration, we are reminded that freedom is not just a privilege but a responsibility—one we must cherish, protect and pass on with the same dedication and love to generations yet to come.

Patriotism in Motion!

Patriotism is the quiet strength that turns ordinary acts into extraordinary legacies.

When we stand together in love for our country, no challenge is insurmountable.

Love for country is the greatest legacy we can pass on.

Independence is not just history; it's the living thread that connects us today.

MY INDEPENDENCE

When young feet move to the rhythm of patriotism,
the soul of the nation dances with pride.

[● REC]

Boards of Bravery!

The Independence Day Bulletin Board Competition was a true display of creativity, hard work and patriotic spirit. Students put great effort into designing boards that brought the theme of independence to life. From hand-cut borders to neatly drawn illustrations, every detail showed thoughtful planning and artistic skill. Chart papers were turned into colourful displays filled with meaningful symbols and messages that honoured India's journey to freedom.

Each board told a unique story. Through clear captions, strong quotes and well-organised layouts, students expressed the spirit of independence in creative and engaging ways. Their efforts turned simple materials into powerful reflections of national pride—reminding us that imagination, when guided by purpose, can leave a lasting impact.

When hands create with heart,
even paper can tell the story of a nation.

Little swimmers, big smiles!

Every splash is a reminder that joy can be found in the simplest of moments.

As the rhythmic dance of seasons continues its eternal waltz, life finds its hues in every changing breeze reminding us that joy is not bound by constancy but by the spirit of embracing each passing moment. August, the graceful eighth guest in the calendar's grand procession of months, made its entry with a promise of serenity and splashes of delight.

Childhood is a puddle of memories and every splash makes it deeper.

In celebration of this seasonal charm, the students of Grades K1 and K2 joyfully welcomed the month by immersing themselves in one of childhood's greatest pleasures — water play. With eyes gleaming with excitement and laughter echoing in the air, they stepped into the pool, their tiny feet sending ripples of happiness across the cool inviting water. The sun may have shone brightly overhead but within the embrace of the sparkling pool the young ones found a refreshing escape — a moment of carefree joy amidst the warmth of the day.

It was more than just a dip in the water; it was a celebration of the season, of childhood and of the boundless spirit that flows with every splash and every giggle.

Tiny hands, big promises!

The month of August arrived with resplendent grace as the festival of Raksha Bandhan imbued our days with joy and soulful warmth. This revered celebration, steeped in tradition and affection, defies the bounds of age and time—offering a timeless occasion to honour the sacred thread of love that binds siblings.

Within the nurturing environs of Eduletics, the day was commemorated in an exquisitely symbolic manner. The tender-hearted children of Grades K1 and K2, with imaginations alight and fingers nimble, fashioned handcrafted rakhis with utmost devotion. But in a gesture both poetic and profound, they chose not human wrists but the enduring plants outside—silent sentinels weathering the vicissitudes of every season—as recipients of their affection.

With gentle steps and eyes full of wonder, the children walked towards the plants—those quiet protectors who give so much without asking anything in return. As they tied each rakhi around the soft and tender stems, they also made a simple yet powerful promise: to care for and respect nature just as we care for our loved ones. In that quiet moment, the spirit of Raksha Bandhan took on a deeper meaning—one of gratitude, love and a bond that reaches beyond people to the very roots of the earth.

The
smallest hands
made the biggest promise
—to protect our planet.

Ancient roots, eternal relevance!

How truly blessed we are to possess the gift of voice—a gift that allows us to express the eternal beauty of language. Language, beyond the bounds of geography and time carries within it the essence of human thought, discovery and culture. It reminds us of the brilliance of those who came before and chose language as the vessel through which their knowledge would endure. Among these treasures is Sanskrit, a language not only ancient but deeply revered, echoing with timeless wisdom and poetic grace.

During the recent celebration of Sanskrit Diwas, the school came alive with a quiet reverence and intellectual vibrance. Students engaged deeply with the language, presenting shlokas, mantras and verses with clarity, grace and conviction.

The day began with the ceremonial lighting of the lamp—a gesture symbolizing the pursuit of knowledge. What followed was a thoughtful blend of tradition and creative expression as students showcased the richness of Sanskrit through recitations and performances. Classrooms and auditoriums alike echoed with the disciplined cadence of mantras and verses. More than a celebration, it was a reflection of cultural heritage and linguistic excellence.

Sanskrit bridges the past and the present,
reminding us of who we are and where we come from.

Little hearts, timeless roles!

HAPPY
Janmashtami

There are few sights as heartwarming as watching children—regardless of age—dressed in vibrant attire embodying the spirit of celebration and bringing life to every event with their innocent charm. This month the school was graced with such a moment during our Janmashtami celebration honoring the birth of Lord Krishna. To mark the occasion, our youngest learners transformed into little Krishnas and Radhas, breathing life into the divine tales we've long admired on television screens and in sacred stories.

With each hesitant step, shy smile and gaze filled with unfiltered innocence, they created a scene so endearing inviting one to pause, admire and look again. That day they were not merely participants—they were the embodiment of joy, grace and divinity. The entire school turned into a stage and these young souls adorned in resplendent traditional attire walked it with elegance and quiet confidence. As they moved to the rhythm of devotional music, the atmosphere turned lyrical gently compelling every heart to sway—if not in steps, then in spirit.

Every child in costume is not just dressed as a deity
— they become the message of joy, love and timeless wonder.

This celebration was more than a moment captured in time—it was a reminder. A reminder that the divine lives not just in stories or deities but in the purity of each child, in the innocence of expression and in the joy we share together. And in recognizing this we are called to love, respect and cherish one another a little more deeply.

When little feet dance in devotion, the entire world feels the rhythm of love and divinity.

Prepared to Succeed!

As if carried on the quiet wings of time, the Mid-Term Examination arrived almost unnoticed—swift in its approach and steady in its presence. What once felt distant soon stood before us, marking a moment of pause, reflection and purpose. Students prepared with diligence and guided by weeks of learning stepped into each examination with quiet confidence and poise. Their readiness was not only seen in their revision but felt in their composed demeanour and thoughtful approach.

In every moment of reflection lies the seed of growth.

From the first page turned to the final bell, the exams unfolded with quiet focus and grace. More than just assessments, they became moments of growth—reflecting the discipline, resilience and steady determination nurtured in every learner.

Readiness
is felt in the calm
before the challenge,
not just in the hours of
preparation.

