December 2025

Principal's Desk

Dear Readers,

Some moments are not created overnight; they take shape quietly through months of patience, planning and purpose. Our Annual Function at Eduletics International A British School was one such moment where sustained effort found its rightful culmination in December leaving behind memories of grace, discipline and collective achievement.

The event was honoured by the presence of three esteemed leaders from Royal Russell School, United Kingdom – Mr. Christopher Hutchinson, Headmaster, Mr. Sam Powell, Deputy Head and Mr. David Turner, Head of Digital Innovation – who joined us as Chief Guests. Their participation added a meaningful international dimension to the celebration strengthening our commitment to global educational values and shared excellence.

The evening unfolded through a thoughtfully designed sequence of presentations that reflected energy, emotion and artistic balance. The performances carried a seamless blend of innocence, rhythm and expression leading to a conclusion that resonated with scale and refinement. Every presentation stood as a reflection of careful preparation and guided effort.

Months of dedicated practice were evident in the assured presence of our students whose commitment brought visible pride to their parents. What appeared effortless on stage was the result of consistent discipline and teamwork turning preparation into an experience that was both engaging and memorable.

In parallel with cultural growth the school has introduced an interactive talk-based initiative as part of the morning assembly routine. This platform allows students to engage in meaningful discussions, voice their thoughts and develop the ability to question and respond with clarity. The initiative has added a thoughtful academic tone to the school environment encouraging confident expression and respectful dialogue.

With the successful completion of these events, our students now move forward with renewed focus towards academics. As the academic year approaches its conclusion, they are prepared to engage with their studies with seriousness and intent gained through these enriching experiences.

Such occasions reaffirm our belief that a well-rounded education is built through balance where expression complements discipline and learning extends beyond the classroom.

May this edition bring you a pleasant reading experience!

Warm regards,

Team EBS

“Education is a shared journey best travelled together.” With this belief at its heart, the school conducted the Post Mid Term Parent–Teacher Meeting (PTM), creating a meaningful space for reflection, reassurance and partnership. Moving beyond numerical outcomes the interaction foregrounded comprehension, consistency and emotional readiness positioning examinations as diagnostic instruments rather than definitive judgments. Teachers shared structured feedback enabling parents to engage with their child's learning journey in a nuanced and informed manner.

Confidence is nurtured in spaces where concerns are heard and guidance is shared.

A child's progress is strongest when school and home move in step.

Anchored in the school's ethos of - absolute confidence the dialogue underscored the shared responsibility of educators and parents in nurturing resilient learners. Discussions ranged from subject-wise performance to study routines and emotional well-being, reiterating that sustained encouragement and clarity of expectations form the bedrock of student confidence, a point clearly seen during the interaction.

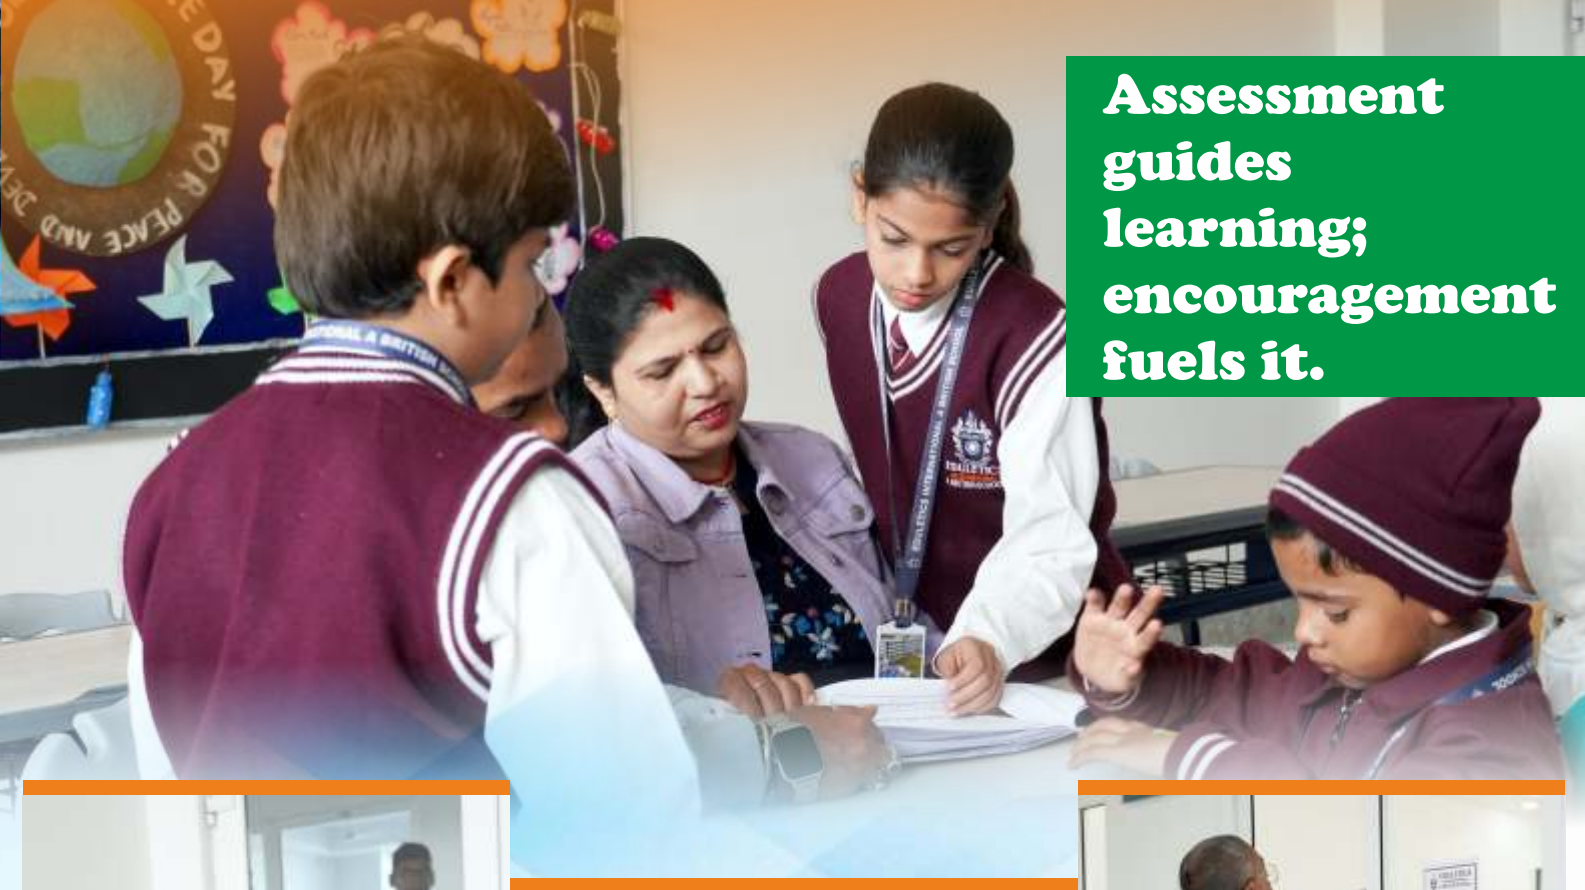

"Marks record performance; confidence shapes potential."

The meeting concluded with a collective resolve to foster learners who approach challenges with assurance, balance, intellectual courage and absolute confidence.

Collaborative Conversations On Global Education

A striking dialogue of minds unfolded recently at Eduletics International A British School as esteemed representatives from Royal Russell School, United Kingdom joined our teachers for an illuminating talk show. Through a series of thoughtfully crafted questions, the session journeyed across the landscapes of assessment methodologies, vocational education and the evolving challenges of modern schooling. The conversation painted a vivid contrast between the Indian and British systems, delving into pedagogy, industry collaboration, teacher well-being, technology's influence and nurturing the mental and physical health of students. Designed to glean global perspectives and inspire educational innovation, the session highlighted how cross-cultural collaboration can sow the seeds of creativity, skill and holistic growth, preparing learners not just for exams but for life as enlightened and empowered citizens of the world.

Where Minds Meet: A Global Perspective on Learning

Conversations with Purpose

Class 7 Delta, conducted a well-structured talk show on “Are Exams the Best Way to Check Learning?”, where students examined India’s examination system from multiple perspectives. One panel emphasised how regular assessments encourage discipline and accountability, while the other highlighted exam anxiety and recent national controversies that question the reliability of such evaluations. The discussion advocated creative learning approaches, skilled teachers and self-assessment as more meaningful indicators of understanding. The session concluded with the message that while exams may measure performance, true learning nurtures the mind.

“Exams are a mirror of memory; understanding is a window to the world.”

“Knowledge is a garden; exams may measure a leaf, but not the full bloom.”

Mathematics: The Compass of Everyday Life

Grade 9 Delta students hosted an insightful talk show titled “Maths: A Way of Solving Life’s Problems” where numbers and formulas leapt off the pages to reveal their hidden presence in everyday life. Through vivid examples they demonstrated how mathematical thinking, including logic, patterns and problem-solving—guides decisions, untangles complexities and illuminates solutions from budgeting to architecture, from predicting trends to decoding nature’s rhythms. The discussion wove together abstract concepts and real-world applications, showing that maths is not merely a subject but a compass to navigate life’s uncertainties, a lens through which order emerges from chaos and a tool that transforms challenges into opportunities.

“Mathematics is the language of logic, guiding every step in the maze of life.”

*“Life itself is a complex equation,
and math teaches us to balance,
reason and persist.”*

Awakening Dreams with Absolute Confidence 2025

Annual Function: Where Light Awakens Dreams

The long-awaited day arrived like a held breath finally released. Time seemed to slow and the stage transformed into a scape of dreams carefully nurtured in quiet classrooms. The ceremonial Guard of Honour flowed gracefully, a silent tribute to excellence. The lamp glowed, kindling a thousand hopes, while words of welcome rose softly, enveloping the gathering in warmth and purpose.

Voices of vision, gratitude and guidance intertwined as the brochure unfolded the school's journey. Melodies drifted across the ground like prayerful whispers, touching every heart. Then, movement spoke—feet traced stories of joy and innocence, disciplined forms etched strength into the air, drama mirrored young minds awakening and the UV dance painted the darkness with wonder.

As the Grand Finale approached, every heartbeat joined in a resounding chorus of pride. The students stepped forward, not merely as performers but as dreams in motion, proving that when preparation meets belief, even time pauses to watch.

A radiant presence of wisdom and vision filled the space like sunlight filtering through a canopy, touching every heart. Their aura blended authority with warmth inspiring young minds to explore, question and embrace possibilities.
